PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD COMPANY PLACES WATCHMEN ON CRAWFORD AVENUE CROSSING, WEST SIDE; ANOTHER TO BE PROTECTED

Two Men Assigned to Duty at Fourth Street Saturday Morning.

OTHERS YET TO BE PLACED

Action by Railroad Company Is Result of Long Agitation on Part of City Council for Some Means of Safeguarding Human Life and Limb.

Without any announcement or notification to city council the Pennsylvania railroad has placed watchmen on the dangerous West Side crossing on West Crawford avenue near Fourth street where a number of fatal accidents have occurred in recent years. The men were stationed there Saturday morning and are to report for duty regularly, indicating the guards are to be permanent.

Inquiry at the offices of the company in Uniontown this morning developed that watchmen had been assigned to crossings designated as "R" and "J."

A visit to all the crossings in this city, however, showed a man stationed only at Fourth street. If there is to be a guard placed at another crossing he has not taken up his duties.

On a number of occasions city council has demanded that the railroad company either place watchmen on the crossings or install safety gates, failing in mere requests to the company, the matter was laid before the Pennsylvania Public Service Commission. The question has been before this board almost two years but nothing concerning any decision has been heard here.

The city went after the railroad company in earnest following the killing of P. J. O'Connor on the West Side when his automobile was struck by a special train. Flagmen were placed at both the West Side and North Pittsburg street crossings to take the names of the persons and vehicles crossing the tracks in a certain number of hours. This matter was all laid before the public service body. Since Mr. O'Connor's death other smash-ups have occurred on the crossing, one resulting fatally.

The West Side tracks are under supervision of a watchman from 6 o'clock in the morning until 10 o'clock at night. There are two eight hour shifts. The first is worked by Frank Clare and the second by Jamie Ruff.

The watchmen have a mail sack with which they signal traffic on the approach of a train. At present the watchman is exposed to the weather throughout his eight hour trick but a small house will be erected for his protection during a lack in traffic.

The appointment of watchmen was a surprise to city officials. They learned of it only when inquiry was made concerning any notification received by council.

The watchmen are expected to prove more satisfactory than safety gates and make travel over the dangerous crossing much safer for both pedestrians and drivers of vehicles.

Chief Button Plans Prompt Action in Hillcrest Mine Fire

HARRISBURG Jan. 17—Chief Edward C. Button of the Department of Mines is making preparations to shortly hold a conference with the commission of mine inspectors selected upon the occasion of his visit to Connellsville to make an inspection and report on the best method of checking the mine fire now in progress on the outskirts of that city. He realizes the importance of prompt action and is determined that it shall be taken in an effective manner.

"This and other mine fires in the state," said Chief Button, "show the importance of devising some system to prevent such occurrences. I am having the inspectors go into the matter thoroughly and hope to work out a plan. The subject of fires is one with which we must be prepared to deal effectively and I want the best advice obtainable."

The Connellsville fire is undermining a state highway and we have to protect that situation for

WILLIAM BALDWIN, RETIRED, FRICK MAN DIES SUDDENLY

Had Been Employed as Blacksmith by Coke Company for 35 Years. 70 Years Old.

[illegible] months old an H. C. Frick pensioner, died suddenly Sunday night at his home near Broad Ford. He was apparently in the best of health all day and up until a short time before he died. He remarked to a daughter-in-law that he had not felt better in 20 years. Soon after he retired members of the family heard him breathing heavily and when they reached his bedside he was dead.

Mr. Baldwin was born at Belle Vernon a son of the late John and Jemima Baldwin. He had resided near Broad Ford for many years and for 35 years was a blacksmith for the H. C. Frick Coke company. He retired 10 years ago. His wife who before her marriage was Miss Elizabeth Ann Stricklin died five years ago. Mr. Baldwin was a member of the Methodist Protestan church of Broad Ford and was highly respected by his many friends. The following children survive: W. L. Baldwin and Mrs. Charles F. Bishop, Connellsville; J. R. Baldwin, Detroit, Mich.; J. L. Baldwin, Continental No. 1; Mrs. Wilbur Reagan, Uniontown; Mrs. J. H. Cable, Dawson and A. D. Baldwin, Long. One brother, Charles Baldwin of Belle Vernon and two sisters, Mrs. Margaret Billope of Warren O. and Mrs. Harriet Minerd of Pittsburg, also survive.

Funeral services will be held at the home Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock with Rev. H. A. Baum, pastor of the Cochran Memorial Methodist church of Dawson officiating. The interment will be made in Chestnut Hill cemetery, Connellsville.

L. K. HALL, ONCE STATE'S OLDEST JUSTICE, DEAD

Father of I. G. Hall of Connellsville Succumbs at Seattle at 96.

NATIVE GREENE COUNTIAN

Leroy Kramer Hall father of I. G. Hall of Connellsville and for many years reputed to have been the oldest justice of the peace in Pennsylvania died Friday at the home of his daughter Mrs. S. M. Blackburn in Seattle, Wash., to which place he went last June. Details were not at once known in the message received by the son here. Mr. Hall was 96 years old last November 22 having been born in 1824. Until about a month ago he was in apparently good health. He had made the journey to the Northwest unattended.

Mr. Hall was born at Greensboro, Greene county and with the exception of nine years in Washington, D. C. where he was a boy and six years in Morgantown, W. Va. following his marriage to Miss Valinda A. Hondron of that place he had lived continuously at Greensboro until his departure for Seattle last summer. He was a son of Samuel and Elizabeth Gore Hall.

In early life Mr. Hall learned the carpenter trade and during much of his active life was engaged in carpentering and carpenter contracting. He erected many buildings in and about Greensboro. He was engaged in government work during the construction of locks on the Monongahela river and for a year was engaged in building operations for the sons in Coal & Coke company.

For about 10 years the aged man was a justice of the peace having entered upon his third term before his decision to go to the Northwest. He was a member of the Baptist church at Greensboro for 70 years and served many years as a deacon. He was a staunch Democrat and often spoke on voting contest for county and presidential candidates from the time he became of age.

His family was one noted for longevity. A sister Elizabeth Hall died in Texas at the age of 96. A brother William lived to be 83.

Of nine children born to Mr. and Mrs. Hall seven are living. They are I. G. Hall of Connellsville, the eldest; George B. Hall, Chicago; Mrs. Jennie Moore, wife of W. L. Moore, Pittsburg; Fred A. Hall, Spokane; Wash.; Mrs. Catherine Collins, wife of Rev. F. F. Collins, Spokane, Wash.; Mrs. Elizabeth Mills, Spokane; and Mrs. S. M. Blackburn, Seattle. Those dead are William and Robert.

The body is to be buried in the old home in Greene county, it is now on the way to Greensboro.

BAPTIST PASTOR RESIGNS TO TAKE UP GREATER WORK

Rev. Edwards Promotion Secretary New World Movement in New Jersey.

ENVIABLE RECORD HERE

Announcement of the resignation of Rev. J. Earle Edwards as pastor of the First Baptist church to become promotion secretary of the Baptist New World Movement for the state of New Jersey which has been under contemplation for some time was made at the morning service Sunday together with the statement that the pastor will leave February 1.

Immediate steps were taken to secure a successor. A special committee composed of A. C. Stickle, J. R. Christy and C. J. Hatfield went to Philadelphia Sunday to interview a minister whose identity is being withheld. The committee will report to the church Wednesday night at which time action will be taken on the resignation.

Many innovations have been introduced into the West church since the coming of Rev. Edwards from Greenville less than a year ago. He has been exceedingly energetic and aggressive and as a result the church is in better condition financially and from the membership standpoint than ever before.

The New World Movement was set in formally launched when Rev. Edwards arrived on the scene. The Greensville church was selected as one in the denomination to start on the New World drives. Under the direction of the pastor the result was a success beyond the fondest expectations. The drive was to gain $60,000 covering a period of five years. Before the first year had been completed this amount had been secured and when the final reports were in the total was $77,000. This is exclusive of the work to be done which it is thought will bring the amount well past the $100,000 mark.

This is only one of the activities instituted by the pastor since his coming to the church. Many changes have been made in the office has been remodeled and redecorated and made more attractive. Much needed repairs were made to the parsonage. And everything done has been paid for. Each Monday is always on hand for whatever purpose needed.

But the greatest inspiration says the retiring pastor comes from the hour full of people at services.

The retiring pastor has been strong on publicity. In this he has been in a class by himself among the ministers of Connellsville in the last decade or longer. He was for three years president of the Connellsville church but had without a doubt. Before he came to Connellsville the city of Greenville paper wrote the Courier that he is "a live wire and a liberal user of printer's ink." He has lived up to what the writer said. When there was anything going on at the church it saw to it that the newspapers found it out and as a rule his copy was well typewritten and ready for use in the paper. Unlike many church press agents he covered the story after the event was over. It is the rule among church folks to seek free publicity in advance and forget the newspapers after the affair is over.

Slides shown in the motion picture houses spread the prospective happenings in the church.

One of the first forms of publicity was the New World electric sign erected in front of the church—the first of its kind in the coke region. Other reports were bulletin board and bill boards—the last named in process of erection.

One of the successful works he undertook was the New World Junior movement. Each Friday evening for weeks the church has been well filled with boys and girls 400 of whom have been enrolled in the junior membership. Motion pictures, songs, Bible stories and music are the features of these weekly gatherings. The movement is non denominational. It is understood every church in the city is represented in the enrollment. The movement was launched last fall and has increased in popularity.

Business principles have been introduced into the work of getting new members of the church. Through the medium of application cards 10 persons have entered the church in the past 10 months. The application reads thus:

Being in entire sympathy with the aims of the First Baptist church of Connellsville to place Christ first in

WEST PENN PLANS TO REVIVE CHEAT RIVER PROJECT

WHEELING, W. Va., Jan. 17—The development of the water power along Cheat river, which will cost in the neighborhood of $15,000,000, started in 1916 by the Kahn interests but abandoned when they failed, will be resumed by the West Penn Electric company, it is learned today. The company is preparing legislation to be introduced at the session of the legislature, according to C. J. Billings, superintendent of the Wheeling Traction company, who left today for Charleston where he will endeavor to have the legislature pass three amendments to the present law.

LOWER TYRONE GAS WELL FLOWING MILLION FEET AFTER BLOWING OFF TOP

Two Men Injured When Pressure Bursts Up Casing Section.

CRATER IN EARTH FORMS

Forced in the pressure in the well of the Investors Oil & Gas company in Lower Tyrone township Sunday afternoon resulted in the destruction of the casing, heavily interested being blown off with consequent injury to five employes who had just stepped inside the enclosure at the base of the derrick and the partial wrecking of the rig. Offsetting this was a hundred per cent increase in the flow of gas which H. S. Mellinger the general manager of the company estimated today at a million cubic feet.

Until a new section of casing and a conductor or other casing can be put in the gas will continue to waste. Work on this is being rushed. The whole upper section extending about 15 feet in the ground was blown out and a crater five to six feet deep formed in the earth about the mouth of the well.

So rapidly did the gas and sand pour forth that Ridilla, secretary of the company and Irwin Watson, an employe were overcome with the derrick at the time the well let go. Ridilla was hurled 15 feet into the tool house and rendered unconscious for a brief spell. He is suffering from bruises and cuts. He had three teeth knocked out. Watson was also blown out the enclosure and his eyes were filled with earth. Neither were able to go to work today.

A drum of steel cable weighing 1,800 pounds was hurled into a corner of the derrick. Manager Mellinger said.

The derrick was blown over but some of its timbers were broken and split by the tremendous force of the gas.

The well was built by Hall Drilling and equipped with a Christmas tree. It was to have been connected with the pipe lines of the Equitable Gas Co. on Jan. 1.

Negotiations are still pending for the sale of the well to the Equitable Gas Co. or its parent company.

ANNUAL BANQUET OF FRICK MEN WAS LARGELY ATTENDED

Custom Inaugurated By Late President Lynch Fittingly Observed.

INTERESTING ADDRESSES

Dealing With Operating Problems Met During the Year Made by Practical Men, 137 Officials From All Parts of the Region Participate in Event.

Following the custom inaugurated by the late Thomas Lynch, president of the H. C. Frick Coke company and observed in each of the succeeding years save that in which Mr. Lynch's death occurred the annual banquet of the executive and operating officials of the company was held at the Greensburg country club, Greensburg Saturday evening several distinguished visitors and Frick men from all parts of the region to the number of 137 being in attendance.

W. H. Gillingerman president acted as toastmaster introducing the speakers of the evening. The addresses dealt interestingly with problems in operation or the explanation of new and novel methods that have been employed at the various mines during the year. The speakers and subjects discussed were as follows:

J. R. Aiken electrical engineer—Use and Abuse of Electrical Equipment. W. J. Culleton superintendent of Leckrone mines—Coal Stripping Operations at Leckrone and Lemco. J. R. Campbell—Water Purification.

The musical features of the evening were provided by a double quarte of singers all Frick employes. The guests from the southern end of the region were carried to Greensburg on a special car over the West Penn. Before the banquet a large party of the men called at the home of Mrs. Lynch to pay their respects to the widow of the much lamented president and founder of the annual gathering.

Judge J. H. Gary chairman of the board of directors of the United States Steel Corporation and James Purcell president of the corporation were unable to be present but each sent a characteristic letter of regret.

LOOK OUT FOR THE RUTS OF POOR HEALTH

There's Work to Be Done by Red-Blooded Men and Women With Strength and Energy

DO YOU FEEL ILL FOR YOUR JOB?

Pepto-Mangan Tones Up and Purifies the Blood of Busy Men and Over-tired Housewives

Take any man who works with his hands all day every day work in a week out. He uses up energy hold of it. If he eats well and rests well his body renews its own energy. But there are days when he is so overtired he calls on his human engine to do more than it can. He strains. His blood gets thin. He feels weak and sluggish maybe grouchy. He simply cannot get things done with his old time vigor.

It is the same with women working around the house every day. Discouraging when they overdo. And they pay the price.

Both workers go through the same thing except that they are more likely to suffer from impoverished blood because they neglect the work in both cases.

So when you get run down from overwork and learn it is a good thing to know about that wonderful tonic Pepto-Mangan. Begin taking it as soon as you feel the first symptoms of run. It will help your blood with the food it needs. You will get back into your stride and pick up again. You will go through your working days feeling fit and able to do things and to relish and enjoy them. That's what they are doing it every day.

Pepto-Mangan is for sale in your druggist in both liquid and tablet form. Tablets are best if you prefer them but make sure you get the genuine. Ask for Gude's Pepto-Mangan and see that name Gude's on the package. Adv.

PHILLIPS SHADES HIS OPPONENT; ZIVIC GETS KNOCKOUT IN SECOND

Former Amateur Bantam Weight Champ Defeats Beer in Short Order On West Side

The first bout of the evening at the Soldiers and Sailors hall Saturday night between Kid Beer and Johnny Phillips of Brownsville was a fast one. In the fourth round Phillips landed a right to the jaw of Beer which had the latter on the floor for the count of nine. Beer was up in a second but Phillips was fighting at top speed and had his opponent groggy. The referee stopped the bout.

In the semi-final Joe Zivic former amateur bantam weight champion and knockout artist in the second round of the semi-final he knocked Freddie Beer of East Liberty who took the place of Mike Morris slated for the affair with Zivic. Some hard hitting after the bell was announced that Zivic is entitled to be matched with Johnny Dundee for a show for the ball championship.

In the curtain raiser Johnny Kilbane of Orville Thorpe of Uniontown and Battling Burke of South Connellsville fought a four round draw. It was the first fight for both men and for three rounds they failed about doing much damage to each other. In the fourth Burke landed some fierce right hands and the other fighter backed away from them. Kilbane in the fifth round shot a right to Burke's jaw which dazed him. Burke in the sixth threw his towel into the ring near the finish of the round and the fight stopped.

Dr. Harry announced after the show that the failure to put on a battle royal was due to an oversight on his part. Only three of the fighters' pants showed up. He declared and he sent them after three substitutes. None showed up again.

SOAP SUBSTITUTES FAVORED

Soapbark Starch Water or Bran Water Are Not Likely to Injure Delicate Colors

While the action of soap is likely to injure a fabric, a substitute should starch water or bran water advised home economics specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture.

Soapbark ground to a powder and boiled in water will form suds if prepared for use. Boil for 30 minutes a cup of the bark with 1 quart of water, then strain the liquid. The soapy water may be used to strengthen for sponging, or all of it for washing. Half a cup is enough for one half tub of water. Since the liquid is brownish it should be used only on dark colored goods.

Starch water is especially good for ironing delicate cotton fabrics. This is usually made by adding cold water paste to the wash water. Water in which clothes have been boiled for a long time also can be used instead. It is necessary boil to have the material soft. Slightly. It must be rinsed in salt water.

Bran water may be the substitute as soapbark solution is useful with colors that are likely to fade. It does not give suds but cleans like starch water.

Rice Jack—To a cupful of sugar add a cupful of molasses two tablespoonfuls of water and cook when nearly brittle add a tablespoonful of butter and a pinch of soda stir in three cupfuls of puffed rice. Spread in a buttered pan.

WORLD'S MOST LONELY SPOT

Not a Desolate Island Nor the Center of a Crowded City, but the Unfriendly Heart.

Asked to name the lonesomest place in the world, a traveler once answered "The island of Tristan d'Acunha far off the coast of South America Its population is 76, and it is visited by a vessel only once in two years"

But the traveler was all wrong Isolated, remote, limited in society the island may be But who lonesome? The last thing we heard from it was that all the inhabitants were working together to fight a dangerous plague of rats. When people can get together for a common purpose they aren't lonesome

A man told us the other day that the lonesomest place he ever found was New York city, where he didn't know a soul and his being there didn't matter to anyone And he was right but he set about changing that condition, and he didn't find even New York lonesome very long For the lonesomest place is no question of geography or population or economics The lonesomest place is always the human heart which hasn't learned how to reach out to other human hearts in the sure knowledge that there will be something in common that if it has affection to spend and loyalty and truth and friendliness there are these things in return waiting to welcome it —Milwaukee Journal

MONDAY EVENING, JAN. 17, 1921.

THE PUBLIC'S RIGHT AND STRIKES.

The year 1920 was not marked by a big strike in any particular line of industry in Pennsylvania but the records of the State Department of Labor and Industry show that the aggregate of the small strikes was quite formidable as measured by the loss in wages and the number of persons affected.

In 565 strikes which occurred during the year the 88,988 workers involved sustained a loss in wages amounting to $14,514,195, a truly prodigious sum when considered that, in these days of high cost of living, the families of the employes affected were deprived of the benefit of the maximum earnings of the bread winners. Divided between the 88,988 workers the average loss is shown to have been somewhat more than $163 per worker. As earnings have been measured in some lines of employment this is not an extraordinary amount but the important thing is that it represents a loss instead of a gain.

Of course, the loss in the case of a large number of employes was greater than $163, just as the loss in other cases was less than that average. But in either event, or whatever the amount, it means that the members of the workers' families were deprived of advantages they could have otherwise possessed and to that extent they fell behind in providing for their needs or comforts or savings by the amount of the loss sustained in individual cases.

Unfortunate as the loss in earnings may have been the more unfortunate fact in connection with the record was that both employes and employers failed to come into such a relationship as would have made it possible for both to have avoided suffering the material losses involved by these strikes. It is true that the bureau of mediation succeeded in adjusting the differences which had produced 436 strikes, and 125 of them were officially called off, thus indicating that both sides were amenable to reason and argument as a means of compromising their differences of view. But the interesting point, as the public views it and is affected by cessation of activity in industry, is that the strikes were not avoided by the parties thereto having sought a mutual understanding and agreement before idleness of employes became necessary or was permitted to take place.

The fact that almost 80 per cent of the strikes were adjusted proves that had overtures in that direction been made by one or other of the parties before the strikes were declared the economic loss which followed could have been prevented and the cause of a better understanding between employers and employes would have been very materially advanced thereby.

The public shares so largely in the loss which invariable follows a strike that it has become quite impatient with this method of settling differences which arise concerning wages and hours of work. Every question save those involving principles of right and wrong can be compromised if the parties thereto exhibit the spirit of co-operation and mutual concessions necessary to a just and fair understanding. The public has the right to expect, and is properly becoming insistent, that this method be employed rather than resort be had to expensive and embittering strikes and lockouts.

If the authorities in Washington had been as zealous in keeping rid of known undesirables as they have been to keep Mayor O'Callahan of Cork out of the United States, their Americanism would rate considerably higher. But in their estimation preaching Bolshevism in America is less an offense than being a defender of political freedom in Ireland.

The resignation of Rev. J. Earle Edwards, pastor of the First Baptist church, is another instance of Connellsville graduating another man for a bigger job and higher honors than we can provide. That's all right for the bigger places but it tends to slow down our own growth to big proportions.

The whole state of Pennsylvania must now share with Governor Sproul the inconvenience and annoyance of having the Legislature on his hands.

Most natural thing in the world for men of the Connellsville region—the coal and coke operators' college—to figure large in the activities of West Virginia and other mining fields.

Sentencing a man to matrimony may, in some instances, verge on the infliction of cruel and unusual punishments, but due regard ought also to be had for the other party to the transaction to whom it may be a case of for worse rather than for better.

Resumption of the silk mill and the Scottdale pipe mill, with Sligo getting ready for greater activity later, are almost as acceptable signs as the appearance of the first robin.

The Dawson gas well "blowed up" in a much more satisfactory manner than some of the McKeesport enterprises.

How Natural He Looks.

Baltimore Sun.

The stuff they supply to the undertakers called for the dress of the next marriage this present-day stuff calls for embalming fluid.

Disarm Germany First

Harvey's Weekly.

The logic of ex-President Poincare's position is incontrovertible. The place to begin disarmament is in Germany. Germany pledged herself to strip down her military equipment in men and war materials to certain clearly defined limitations. She pledged herself to do this by the first of January, 1921. She has not done it. She has refused to do it. Pleading an excuse that is an absurdity, she says she cannot do it.

Now, with Germany taking this attitude, the ex-President of France holds that talk of disarmament among other nations is inappropriate and untimely. The fact that Germany at this moment is impotent, so far as another brigand raid on her neighbors is concerned, is beside the question. The prime object of the war was so to disarm and cripple her that further criminal endeavor on her part would be impossible—impossible not merely for a decade or for many decades, but for all time. For nearly half a century she had been an overhanging menace to the civilized world. She made good her long-standing threat. She plunged the world into such a welter of slaughter and ruin as it had never known before. She was beaten at last—beaten to her knees. There was but one thing to do with her. She must be so hobbled and hamstrung that never again would she be able to work the havoc she had wrought in the world during the four years of horror when she had run amuck.

It was with that object in view that the demands for the reduction of her army to a bare skeleton and for the destruction of her weapons of thuggery were made. It was her assent to those demands that induced the American and the Allied forces to let her up when they had her down with their hands on her throat. And no sooner was she on her feet than she began her whinings, her dodgings and evasions. Concession after concession was granted her, and with every concession came new pleas for more concessions. These pleas at last began to ring with the accent of demands. There was a distinct note of truculence in her last flat refusal to reduce her armed forces to the limits to which she stood pledged to reduce them.

As ex-President Poincare very truly says, there is nothing the German understands save force. This has been demonstrated with every passing day since the terms of the armistice were signed. From that day to this, there has been a persistent assertion and reassertion in Germany that Germany was not defeated in the war. The yielding attitude of the Allies in all the subsequent conferences with her seems only to have confirmed that assertion. It has now apparently become an article of faith in Germany that she was not defeated in the war. From that assertion it is only a step to the contemption of the dogma that Germany won the war. Indeed, the entire German attitude of late might easily be construed into an assertion that Germany did win it.

The French have arrived at the conclusion that it is now high time that this nonsense came to an end. Ex-President Poincare feels, and his countrymen agree with him, that it is time Germany were made to know at once and for all that the length of her tether has been reached. In that attitude both the Allies and the American people will heartily concur. So far as France is concerned, she has asked no indemnity of Germany. All she has asked is that Germany shall pay for the wanton, coldly calculated havoc she wrought during her brutal invasion of French territory. By spending countless millions of money in reparations, France has, even by that much, advanced cash to Germany. Germany must repay this money. She must in addition pay the staggering balance still due for her devastation of French soil.

Next May the total of Germany's bill of damages will be determined and rendered. Meanwhile, not one fraction of Germany money must be diverted to the maintenance of military forces beyond the exact limitations laid down in the terms of the armistice and accepted by Germany.

Just Folks

HIDE YOUR TROUBLES.

Hide your troubles, keep 'em down,
Nothing's bettered by a frown;
Spreading dismal tales of woe
Doesn't help you as you go.
Talking of your round of care
Makes it doubly hard to bear.

Find some joy to talk about,
Never let your hardships out.
Keep 'em to yourself an' tell
Other folks you're doing well;
Whimpering won't help a bit.
Silence is the source of grit.

Hide your troubles, big or small,
Talking doesn't help at all;
Even though you're in despair
Just pretend your skies are fair.
Fight by day, but when it's night
Never talk about your fight.

Friends should see you at your best,
Keep your troubles in your breast.
Don't make petty troubles known.
You can battle to conquer
[illegible] underneath a smile.

Senreco

The double-service tooth paste, keeps teeth clean AND GUMS HEALTHY.

Keeping the gums healthy and the mouth sweet is very important to health; more teeth are lost through the loosening of the tissue that holds the teeth in place than from decay.

Dental science to-day demands that a tooth paste must keep the gums healthy as well as clean the teeth.

Senreco was formulated to meet this requirement. Hundreds of dentists are prescribing and using Senreco because they have found that it does measure up to that standard.

SENRECO IS A WONDERFUL CLEANSER.

In addition to its remedial properties Senreco is a wonderful cleanser; acts directly on the mucin film, the basis of tartar; leaves the mouth cool and clean-feeling. As some one has expressed it—Senreco gives one a new idea on mouth cleanliness.

Get a tube to-day at your druggists or toilet counter—enjoy the healthy, cleanly feeling its use gives your mouth and gums. Notice how brilliantly white Senreco makes your teeth. It performs this two-fold service for you and yet costs no more than the ordinary, old-fashioned tooth paste that simply cleans the teeth and leaves a pleasant taste—

FOUL SHOOTING COUNTS

The crowd which filled the high school gymnasium Saturday night to witness the Johnstown Connellsville High game were thrilled with snappy passing and plays that compared with those of the Kid Dark-Billy Kummer type in the old days of the Central league games Fans saw the two teams fighting a nip and tuck battle for 40 minutes the score at the end of that period resulting in a tie necessitating an extra five minute period

Connellsville won 32-31 Considerable credit of rather practically all of it goes to Ellis A Solosson for the victory He kept the Cokers in the running with his foul shooting and although he did fall down just a few minute before the final whistle when he blowed several in a row he made sufficient to tie the score and then added two more in the extra period which were sufficient to win topped by a long field goal by Dicky McCormick

Things looked bad for the Cokers at the opening of the game Johnstown got the first point and kept adding until it had quite a lead being ahead at the end of the first quarter The players in the second period was remarkable however The difference in their speed was easily noticeable and the gap was rapidly closed Then with the score very close both aggregations battled until the first half ended with Connellsville ahead by two points the score being 18-16

The neck and neck race continued in the third period Just 10 seconds before the end of this period the score was 23-23 Play had just resumed when the Cokers were fouled and Tremellen, for the visitors scored a basket giving his team a one point lead at the end of that period

The last quarter was a "hair raiser" The score became tied and then a point either to one side or the other at least a dozen times As time became shorter the Cokers maintained a lead of one point fouls making the total Just before the timers gun went off the Cokers committed another foul Tremellen dropped it in tying the score The time of the game was up but Referee Wall immediately opened the extra period

The big crowd rose to its feet during that last five minute The score was tied at 28-28 Johnstown tossed on a foul Then McCormick placed one through the basket Connellsville had the end by one point Johnstown was awarded another free shot and made good With the score tied at 30 all the Cokers again went back on a foul foul Then with time about up the referee called a double foul Johnstown shot first and made the basket again tying the score With the opportunity for victory in his hand Solosson stepped to the foul line Coach Ellis put new life into the team and Solosson made a perfect one The score

GOLER GIRLS WIN OVER JEANNETTE HIGH SCHOOL

The Connellsville high school girls took unto themselves victories Saturday night one of which the Jeannette girls after seemingly having it all over the locals were developed by a score of to 1

The young ladies were traveling a fast pace and played as good a floor game as any girl team ever put on the score reflecting there was nothing slow about the contest Jeannette had the lead for a time but when some substitutions were made the Goler girls quickly closed After the game the girls served their guests at tea in the dining room of the domestic science department

* * * *

Ab Solosson shot 14 out of 17 foul goals in the first half After missing three out of seven he made 10 straight successful fouls Tremellen was more irregular for the visitors

* * * *

Now that we have seen a fast aggregation like Johnstown defeated we are still more puzzled than ever just how West Newton trounced the Cokers

* * * *

It is rumored that it may be necessary for the girls to play the return game here with the West Newton quintet to insure a victory for the Orange and Black

STEEL INDUSTRY DEPRESSION NOT TO BE OF LONG DURATION

Years of Practical Cessation of Building Makes It Obvious Great Demand For Structural Materials Must Follow Closely Readjustment of Price Schedules.

COKE TRADE LIKELY TO GROW BETTER IN 1921

From The Weekly Courier

Obviously the prospects of the coke trade for the year 1921 are not as good as they were a year ago for the year 1920 but this much can be said that the year is likely to show an average of conditions much better than those existing at the opening.

The present condition is that of more than half the blast furnaces that draw their coke from the Connellsville region being out, while of those that are in blast many are counting the days or weeks until they also will blow out. There is no market demand for pig iron and as costs are high the furnaces will not make up unsold stocks. To a limited extent they make up stocks before blowing out to take care of orders they have.

The iron and steel industry however is certainly not set for a prolonged period of depression. The situation is perfectly plain. What is known as an industrial depression comes when there has been an excess of building when there are more dwelling houses, hotel and office skyscrapers, bridges, power plants, factories and other utilities than the people need and there has to be a wait until the needs of the people grow up to the facilities. As steel is used largely for construction purposes, the iron and steel industry languishes during such waiting periods. No such condition exists today. There are not enough dwelling houses. Hotels have been crowded. Some office buildings in Pittsburg are raising rents even now. Railroad facilities are inadequate for a normal business movement.

The country is simply in the midst of a readjustment in values and services. Workmen were rendering too little service to measure up to a real day's work. Dealers and manufacturers were making larger profits than could be counted upon in the long run. Commodity prices were too high. In the grand aggregate the people can only receive such services as they render. We have no slaves working for us.

Very probably some kinds of service are going to be rewarded more liberally than before the war but that will be exceptional and not general for it cannot be general. Before the war four was the sum of two and two and it is not now and never will be the sum of three and three. The country is simply waiting until everyone is willing to play the game right give and take. It will do no good for steel makers to give away structural steel for buildings if lumber is at a prohibitive price or if the cost of erecting the steel is too great. The building will not be built until all the items of cost are at something like a reasonable level.

Business as it is merely a matter of men changing their minds of becoming reconciled to reasonably hard and intelligent work and reasonable profits, the process need not take long, possibly only a very few months more. Certainly all that is requisite is a change in mental attitude. It is certainly not going to take a year.

There are some manufacturers who have not adjusted their views yet. There are many commodities made from steel for sale to the general public that are not down to the proper price in relation to the steel products, sold by the steel mills from which they are made. The steel industry is suffering from this because the demand for steel arises from the ultimate consumer. If the retailer, or the wholesaler or the manufacturer holds bedsteads at an unreasonable price so that the public cannot afford to buy many the steel manufacturer is powerless to increase the demand for bedstead steel by reducing his own prices. The steel industry therefore must wait for readjustment all along the line before it can expect to be fully employed again.

Present prospects are that the rate of pig iron and steel production will decline somewhat from the rate prevailing at the beginning of this year for a period of a few weeks hardly for a longer time than until the middle of March. There should be an upturn by that time, with progressive improvement afterwards and it is easily conceivable that by October the iron and steel industry will be running full. That will mean a considerably greater rate of output than obtained in 1920 for on account of various physical disabilities the industry was not able to operate at capacity. The best rate of steel production in 1920 was shown in March, a rate of about 45,000,000 tons of ingots a year, but at that time it was well recognized that the mills were not running at their real capacity. The average for the first nine months of 1920 was only 42,000,000 tons a year. Demand seemed heavy during that period but it can easily be much heavier in future when there is a reasonable full demand for railroad steel and for steel involved in large construction work generally.

The experience of the year 1920 gave the Connellsville region a much broader vision of its prospects for the future. Years ago the Connellsville coke operator felt that his future lay in his beehive coke. He was unable to conceive of his coal itself being valuable as a shipped commodity but 1920 showed that coal can be worth more for sale than for converting into beehive coke for the coke to be sold. The operator found he had two strings to his bow instead of one.

Coke, pig iron and steel products are going to be sold at reasonable prices not at prices which in the long run will not yield fair profits but at prices which are made up of the lowest possible cost of production plus a fair profit. In all these branches of the general iron and steel industry there were men at the close of 1920 who exhibited a disposition to close their plants and await the return of prices to which they had become accustomed, prices that included a very high production cost. Idleness however is not an American characteristic and the idleness such men contemplated will become irksome. It will be realized as soon men in the steel industry are already realizing that when it is necessary to get costs down they cannot be gotten down by an indefinitely long period of idleness. It is necessary to operate a mill in order to pare costs. Costs cannot be reduced when there are no costs except by waiting for prices of raw materials and labor to come down and that process cannot take long.

Smithfield.

SMITHFIELD Jan 17 The writer is in receipt of a liberal parcels post package of evaporated and dried fruits from Hood River Oregon. The package contained apricots prunes dried apples and two varieties of cherries the Bing and Royal Ann. With the exception of the apricots this was home grown and put up by Miss Laura O'Neil a niece of the writer and was grown in 1919 in her own orchard in the Hood River valley. Owing to the unprecedented cold winter of 1920 which killed the fruit there they had no fruit that year. She procured the apricots from a friend in Portland Oregon. All of this fruit is far superior to any we have ever been able to get here. The cherries are the sweet variety and when maturity on the tree must have been as large as the Big Bunson plum. The winter there has been a very mild one up to time of shipment January 8 everything being being green the roses of which they have 50 varieties some of which are as large as dinner plates are still in bloom.

Beecher's Denial of Silly Story

Another characteristic story of Henry Ward Beecher the great preacher written by Edward Bok is:

"There was in circulation during Henry Ward Beecher's lifetime a story which is still revived very now and then that on a hot Sunday morning in early summer he began his sermon in Plymouth church by declaring that it is too d—d hot to preach. Bok wrote to the great preacher asking him the truth of this report and received this definite denial:

"My dear Friends No I never did begin a sermon with the remark that it is d—d hot etc. It is a story a hundred years old revamped every few years to suit some new man. When I am dead and gone it will be told of the rising generation expecting some other man and then as now there will be fools who will swear that they heard it."

Remarkable "Madstone"

The madstone is a stone which when applied to a wound caused by the bite of a mad dog is said to prevent hydrophobia. The most famous stone of this sort in the United States is owned in Virginia and was brought from Scotland in 1778. It is said to be the one spoken of by Sir Walter Scott in "The Talisman." It is about two inches long one inch wide and half an inch thick, of chocolate color. When applied to the wound it is said to adhere until all the poison has been absorbed, when it drops off. It is then soaked in warm milk or water and when removed the liquid is said to be permeated with a greenish yellow scum.

RAILROAD BY WIRELESS

Louisville & Nashville Company Installing Several Outfits.

By Associated Press.

LOUISVILLE Ky Jan 17 Train dispatching by wireless will be put in operation on the Louisville & Nashville railroad, it was announced here by Telegraph Superintendent R. Hobbs of the Louisville & Nashville railroad. The company has purchased wireless outfits and will install them at Louisville, New Orleans, Pensacola and Mobile for the general message service of the company.

Train dispatching by wireless however Mr Hobbs said is not practicable at all times. There sometimes are as many as 25 trains with the same number running on the lines of the company at the same time and as wireless messages can be heard all over the country confusion would be created. The wireless will be merely supplementary to the regular wires.

every life and to help make a new world of brotherhood and unselfish service beginning with me as one of its members I hereby make application for membership

"If accepted I pledge the resources of my personality, time and means to carry out this program

According to the pastor there are countless multitudes of people in the country waiting for just such a simple and normal requirement of application for church membership

The outstanding feature of every sermon by Rev Edwards has been service It is said by those who speak but that the heart of the address is the necessity of one giving himself to his fellows This he contends is Christianity

Introduced into the church since the coming of Rev Edwards is A New World Creed' or 'Our Creed and Covenant This was written by A P Richards, former assistant secretary of the Young Mens Christian Association now located in the Middle West This is repeated during each Sunday morning worship It reads

I believe in a New World wherein Christ shall be made triumphant, and in the bringing of His principles to men that His example and teachings shall prevail among the people of the earth

I believe that He alone can save this world from the evils that beset it and that the tenets of His righteousness must be incorporated in the lives of all mankind if justice and right are to be made secure

I believe that I have a personal daily duty in building a New World

I believe that I as a Christian must do my utmost here in my own community to propagate these principles if my life is to be made rich and full and if other lives are to attain that measure of Christian knowledge and achievement which is their due and need

I pledge to God and myself the ordering of my hands my brain and my heart to His purposes in my circle of living that the Church of Christ may move on to the certain fulfillment of her glorious destiny

"I Am Certainly Glad to Add My Voice to Those Who Are Praising Tanlac," Declares Mrs. Lenk.

"I am certainly glad to add my voice to those who are praising Tanlac for the medicine has simply been wonderful in restoring my health said Mrs Judith Lenk of 411 11th street Altoona Pa

Before I got Tanlac everything I ate seemed to lie in my stomach undigested, bloating me up and causing me awful pain and suffering My appetite became so poor I ate little more than enough to keep my body and soul together and frequently I was so nauseated I couldn't eat anything at all My arms and legs were so stiff I was almost unable to turn my hands to do a thing and my muscles and joints seemed to lose all their strength I was so nervous the least little excitement upset me I took no interest at all in things around the house and in fact it just looked like I was going to pine away into a complete invalid

I heard so much of the wonderful good Tanlac was doing for others I began taking it myself and I just can't praise the medicine enough for six bottles have put me in the very best of health I have a splendid appetite and no matter what I eat everything digests perfectly and my stomach doesn't trouble me a bit I have gained ten pounds in weight and my nerves are as steady as a rock I'm so strong and healthy now I can get about and do things I used to and I certainly owe Tanlac a big debt of gratitude

Tanlac is sold in Connellsville by all leading druggists —Adv

The creed has been copied by many churches in the country It has been published in all the leading denominational papers and some interdenominational papers among them the Baptist Watchman the Examiner Christian Work and the Christian Herald It appeared on the front page of the Bulletin of the Lake Avenue Baptist church Rochester N Y one of the leading Baptist churches of the country

The electric sign in front of the church bearing the words In Business for a New World was the idea of the pastor Cards bearing greetings from the church and rest of the town have been sent to 3 000 Baptist churches of the country including every Baptist church in Pennsylvania

The church slogan In Business for a New World was the work of Rev Edwards It has since come to be used in many churches of the denomination It is the slogan for every activity of the church

One of the first tasks undertaken by Rev Edwards in association with leading men and women of the church was the raising of a fund of $60 00 for current expenses missions and benevolences covering a four year period The goal was exceeded by $15 000 At the annual congregational meeting held recently reports submitted showed that the money pledged for the first year had been overpaid As compared with payments of 10 per cent on the average in other churches of the state the First church paid 100 per cent

When the financial canvass was attempted a month in advance of that of the Interchurch World Movement in the city there was skepticism on the part of many in other church ministers included and when the goal was far exceeded there were loud predictions that the subscribers would default in payments Thus far nothing of the kind has happened

No one has been heard to accuse Rev Edwards of any motive of self elevation His zeal has been for the growth of the First Baptist church Naturally he gained from outside the local church and the offer he has accepted was the result

It was Rev Edwards who introduced motion pictures into the religious church work of the city The Baptist church thus far is the only one to have a permanent motion picture machine installed It is used each Sunday and at other church gatherings

The loss of the pastor will not mean cessation of the activities now under way including the New World Junior weekly gatherings We are going to keep things going a leader among the laymen said

The Clear Thinker

They say of a man He is a clear thinker A clear thinker is one who is honest with himself Sees things as they are but the truth he is able to arrive at correct and definite conclusions because his mental vision is unobstructed He is able to accomplish things because he thinks in a straight line

Most of us say certain things cannot be done because the doing of them entails some little sacrifice or hardships on our part We know in our hearts that these things can be done yet we say no" because we are not honest with ourselves—because we refuse to think clearly

No one can achieve success unless he be a clear thinker many of us start out in life with great promises and later find ourselves shunted into the siding of mediocrity or the junk yard of failure We have allowed our minds to become encrusted with barnacles —Ben Franklins Key

URIC ACID IN MEAT BRINGS RHEUMATISM

Says a Little Salts In Water May Save You from Dread Attack.

Rheumatism is easier to avoid than to cure states a well known authority We are entitled to dress warmly keep the feet dry avoid exposure eat meat but drink lots of good water.

Rheumatism is a direct result of eating too much meat and other rich food that produces uric acid which is absorbed into the blood It is the function of the kidneys to filter this acid from the blood and cast it out in the urine the pores of the skin are also active in this respect, freeing the blood of the impurity In damp and cold weather the skin pores are closed thus forcing the kidneys to do double work they become weak and sluggish and fail to eliminate the uric acid which keeps accumulating and circulating through the system eventually settling in the joints the muscles causing stiffness soreness and pain called rheumatism

At the first twinge of rheumatism get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts put a tablespoonful in a glass of water and drink before breakfast each morning for a week This is said to eliminate uric acid by dissolving the kidneys to normal action thus ridding the blood of these impurities

Jad Salts is inexpensive harmless and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice combined with lithia and has been used with excellent results by thousands of folks who are subject to rheumatic Adv

The Voice of the Pack

BY EDISON MARSHALL

(Copyright, 1920, Little, Brown & Company)

During the hour that they were crossing over the foothills, on the way to the big timber, Silas Lennox talked a great deal about the frontiersman that had been Dan's grandfather. A mountain man does not use profuse adjectives. He talks very simply and very straight, and often there are long silences between his sentences. Yet he conveys his ideas with entire clearness.

Dan realized at once that if he could be, in Lennox's eyes, one-fifth of the man his grandfather had been, he would never have to fear again the look of disappointment with which his host had greeted him at the station. But instead of reaching that high place, he had only—death. He knew what his destiny was in these quiet hills. And it was true that he began to have secret regrets that he had come. But it wasn't that he was disappointed in the land that was opening up before him. It fulfilled every promise. His sole reason for regrets lay in the fact that now the whole mountain world would know of the decay that had come upon his people. Perhaps it would have been better to have left them to their traditions.

He had never dreamed that the fame of his grandfather had spread so far. For the first ten miles Dan listened to stories—legends of a cold nerve that simply could not be shaken; of a powerful, tireless physique; of moral and physical strength that was seemingly without limit. Then, as the foothills began to give way to the higher ridges, and the shadow of the deeper forests fell upon the narrow, brown road, there began to be long gaps in the talk. And soon they rode in utter silence, evidently both of them absorbed in their own thoughts.

Dan did not feel oppressed at all. He merely seemed to fall into the spirit of the woods, and no words came to his lips. Every mile was an added delight to him. Not even wine could have brought a brighter sparkle to his eyes. He had begun to experience a vague sort of excitement, an emotion that was almost kin to exultation, over the constant stir and movement of the forest life. Once, as they stopped the car to refill the radiator from a mountain stream, Lennox looked at him with sudden curiosity. "You are getting a thrill out of this, aren't you?" he asked wonderingly.

It was a curious tone. Perhaps it was a hopeful tone, too. He spoke as if he hardly understood.

"A thrill?" Dan echoed. He spoke as a man speaks in the presence of some great wonder. "Good Heavens, I never saw anything like it in my life."

"In this very stream," the mountaineer told him joyously, "you may occasionally catch trout that weigh three pounds."

But as he got back into the car the look of interest died out of Lennox's eyes. Of course any man would be somewhat excited by his first glimpse of the wilderness. It was not that he had inherited any of the traits of his grandfather. It was absurd to hope that he had. And he would soon get tired of the silences and want to go back to his cities. He told his thought—that it would all soon grow old to him; and Dan turned almost in anger.

"You don't know," he said. "I didn't know myself how I would feel about it. I'm never going to leave the hills again."

"You don't mean that."

"But I do." He tried to speak further, but he coughed instead. "But I couldn't if I wanted to. That cough tells you why, I guess."

"You mean to say—" Silas Lennox turned in amazement. "You mean that you're a—a goner? That you've given up hope of recovering?"

"That's the impression I meant to convey. I've got a little over four months—though I don't see that I'm any weaker than I was when the doctor said I had six months. Those four will take me all through the fall and the early winter. And I hope you won't feel that you've been imposed upon—to have a dying man on your hands."

"It isn't that." Silas Lennox threw his car into gear and started up the long grade. And he drove clear to the top of it and into another glen before he spoke again. Then he pointed to what looked to Dan like a brown streak that melted into the thick brush. "That was a deer," he said slowly. "Just a glimpse, but your grandfather could have got him between the eyes. Most like as not, though, he'd have let him go. He never killed except when he needed meat. But that—as you say—ain't the impression I'm trying to convey."

He seemed to be groping for words.

"What is it, Mr. Lennox?" Dan asked.

"Instead of being sorry, I'm mighty glad you've come," Lennox told him. "It's not that I expect you to be like your grandfather. You haven't had his chance. But it's always the way of true men, the world over, to come back to their own kind to die. That deer we just saw—he's your people, and so are all these ranchers that grub their lives out of the forests—they're your people, too. And you you don't have pleasure the old man's old friends any better, or done more for his memory, than to come back to his own land for your last days."

The words were strange, yet Dan instinctively understood. It was as if a prodigal son had returned at last, and although his birthright was squandered and he came only to die, the people of his home would give him kindness and forgiveness, even though it could not give him their respect.

CHAPTER III.

The Lennox home was a typical mountain ranch-house—square, solid, comforting in storm and wind. Bill was out to the gate when the car drove up. He was a son of his father, a strong man in body and personality. He too had heard of the elder Failing, and he opened his eyes when he saw the slender youth that was his grandson. And he led the way into the white-walled living room.

"You must be chilly and worn out from the long ride," Lennox suggested quietly. He spoke in the tone a strong man invariably uses toward an invalid. Dan felt a curious resentment at the words.

"I'm not cold," he said. "It's hardly dark yet. I'd sooner go outdoors and look around."

The elder man regarded him curiously, perhaps with the faintest glimmer of admiration. "You'd better wait till tomorrow, Dan," he replied. "Bill will have supper soon, anyway. You don't want to overdo too much, right at first."

"You'd Better Wait Till Tomorrow, Dan."

"But, good heavens! I'm not going to try to spare myself while I'm here. It's too late for that."

"Of course—but sit down now, anyway. I'm sorry that Snowbird isn't here."

"Snowbird is—"

"My daughter. My boy, she can make a biscuit! That's not her name, of course, but we've always called her that. She got tired of keeping house and is working this summer. Poor Bill has to keep house for her, and no wonder he's eager to take the stock down to the lower levels. I only wish he hadn't brought 'em up this spring at all; I've lost dozens from the coyotes."

"But a coyote can't kill cattle—"

"It can if it has hydrophobia, a common thing in the varmints this time of year. But as I say, Bill will take the stock down next season, and then Snowbird's work will be through, and she'll come back here."

"Then she's down in the valley?"

"Far from it. She's a mountain girl if she ever lived. Perhaps you don't know the recent policy of the forest service to hire women when they can be obtained. It was a policy started in war times and kept up now because it is economical and efficient. She and a girl from college have a cabin not five miles from here on old Bald mountain, and they're doing lookout duty."

Dan wondered intensely what lookout duty might be. "You see, Dan," Lennox said in explanation, "the government loses thousands of dollars every year by forest fire. A fire can be stopped easily if it is seen soon after it starts. But let it burn awhile, in this dry season, and it's a terror—a wall of flame that races through the forests and can hardly be stopped. And maybe you don't realize how enormous this region is—literally hundreds of miles across. We're the last outpost—there are four cabins, if you can find them, in the first seventy miles back to town. So they have to put lookouts on the high points, and now they're coming to the use of airplanes so they can keep even a better watch. Snowbird and a girl friend from college got jobs this summer as lookouts—all through the forest service they are hiring women for the work. They are more vigilant than men, less inclined to take chances, and work cheaper. These two girls have a cabin near a spring, and they cook their own food, and are making what is big wages in the mountains. I'm rather hoping she'll drop over for a few minutes tonight."

"Good Lord—does she travel over these hills in the darkness?"

The mountaineer laughed—a delighted sound that came somewhat curiously from the bearded lips of the stern, dark man. "Dan, I'll swear she's afraid of nothing that walks the face of the earth—and it isn't because she hasn't had experience either. She's a dead shot with a pistol, for one thing. She's physically strong, and every muscle is hard as nails. She used to have Shag, too—the best dog in all these mountains. She's a mountain girl, I tell you; whoever wins her has got to be able to tame her." The mountaineer laughed again.

The call to supper came then, and Dan got his first sight of mountain food. There were potatoes, newly dug, mountain vegetables that were crisp and cold, a steak of peculiar shape, and a great bowl of purple berries to be eaten with sugar and cream. Dan's appetite was not as a rule particularly good. But evidently the long ride had affected him. He simply didn't have the moral courage to refuse when the elder Lennox heaped his plate.

"Good heavens, I can't eat all that," he said, as it was passed to him. But the others laughed and told him to take heart.

He took heart. It was a singular thing, but at that first bite his sudden confidence in his gustatory ability almost overwhelmed him. So he cut himself a bite of the tender steak—fully half as generous as the bites that Bill was consuming across the table. And its first flavor simply filled him with delight.

"What is this meat?" he asked. "I've certainly tasted it before."

"I'll bet a few dollars that you haven't, if you've lived all your life in the Middle West," Lennox answered. "Maybe you've got what the scientists call an inherited memory of it. It's the kind of meat your grandfather used to live on—venison."

Soon after dinner Lennox led him out of the house for his first glimpse of the hills in the darkness.

They walked together out to the gate, across the first of the wide pastures where, at certain seasons, Lennox kept his cattle; and at last they came out upon the tree-covered ridge. The moon was just rising. They could see it casting a curious glint over the very tips of the pines. But it couldn't get down between them. They stood too close, too tall and thick for that. And for a moment, Dan's only sensation was one of silence.

"You have to stand still a moment, to really know anything," Lennox told him.

They both stood still. Dan was as motionless as that day in the pack, long weeks before, when the squirrel had climbed on his shoulder. The first effect was a sensation that the silence was deepening around them. It wasn't really true. It was simply that he had become aware of the little continuous sounds of which usually he was unconscious, and they tended to accentuate the hush of the night. He knew, just as all mountaineers know, that the wilderness about him was stirring and pulsing with life. Some of the sounds were quite clear—an occasional stir of a pebble or the crack of a twig, and some, like the faintest twitching of leaves in the brush not ten feet distant, could only be guessed at.

"What is making the sounds?" he asked.

He didn't know it, at the time, but Lennox turned quickly toward him. It wasn't that the question had surprised the mountaineer. Rather it was the tone in which Dan had spoken. It was perfectly cool, perfectly self-contained.

"The one right close is a chipmunk, I don't know what the others are; no one ever does know. Perhaps ground squirrels, or rabbits, or birds, and maybe one of those harmless old black bears who is curious about the house. And tell me—can you smell anything—"

"Good Lord, Lennox! I can smell all kinds of things."

"I'm glad. Some men can't. No one can enjoy the woods if he

Part of the smells are of flowers, and part of balsam, and God only knows what the others are. They are just the wilderness—"

Dan could not only perceive the smells and sounds, but he felt that they were leaving an imprint on the very fiber of his soul. He knew one thing. He knew he could never forget this first introduction to the mountain night. The whole scene moved him in strange, deep ways in which he had never been stirred before; it left him exultant and, in deep wells of his nature far below the usual currents of excitement, a little excited too.

Then both of them were startled out of their reflections by the clear, unmistakable sound of footsteps on the ridge. Both of them turned, and Lennox laughed softly in the darkness. "My daughter," he said. "I knew she wouldn't be afraid to come."

Dan could see only Snowbird's outline at first, just her shadow against the moonlit hillside. His glasses were none too good at long range. And possibly, when she came within range, the first thing that he noticed about her was her stride. The girls he knew didn't walk in quite that free, strong way. She took almost a man-size step and yet it was curious that she did not seem ungraceful. Dan had a distinct impression that she was floating down to him on the moonlight. She seemed to come with such unutterable smoothness. And then he heard her call lightly through the darkness.

Standing in the Shadows, He Simply Watched Her.

The sound gave him a distinct sense of surprise. Some way, he hadn't associated a voice like this with a mountain girl; he had supposed that there would be so many harshening influences in this wild place. Yet the tone was as clear and full as a trained singer's. It was not a high voice; and yet it seemed simply brimming, as a cup brims with wine, with the rapture of life. It was a self-confident voice too, wholly unaffected and sincere, and wholly without embarrassment.

Then she came close, and Dan saw the moonlight on her face. And as it came about, whether in dreams or wakefulness, he could see nothing else for many hours to come.

The girl who stood in the moonlight had health. She was simply vibrant with health. It brought a light to her eyes, and a color to her cheeks; and life and shimmer to her moonlit hair. It brought curves to her body, and strength and firmness to her limbs, and the grace of a deer to her carriage. Whether she had regular features or not Dan would have been unable to state. He didn't even notice. They weren't important when health was present. Yet there was nothing of the coarse or bold or voluptuous about her. She was just a slender girl, perhaps twenty years of age, and weighing even less than the figure occasionally to be read in the health magazines for girls of her height. And she was fresh and cool beyond all words to tell.

And Dan had no delusions about her attitude toward him. For a long instant she turned her keen, young eyes to his white, thin face; and at once it became abundantly evident that beyond a few girlish speculations she felt no interest in him. After a single moment of rather strained, polite conversation with Dan—just enough to satisfy her idea of the conventions—she began a thrilling girlhood tale to her father. And she was still telling it when they reached the house.

Dan held a chair for her in front of the fireplace, and she took it with entire naturalness. He was careful to put it where the firelight was at its height. He wanted to see its effect on the flushed cheeks, the soft dark hair. And then, standing in the shadows, he shapely watched her. With the eye of an artist he delighted in her gestures, her rippling enthusiasm, her utter irrepressible girlishness that all of nine and not years enough to kill.

Bill stood watching her, his hands deep in his pockets, evidently a companion of the best. Her father gazed at her with amused tolerance. And Dan—he didn't know in just what way he did look at her. And he didn't have time to decide. In less than fifteen minutes, and wholly without warning, she sprang up from her chair and started toward the door.

"Good Lord!" Dan breathed. "If you make such sudden motions as that

Animal Extract Tablets Now Used to Build Health and Strength for Young and Old

Is it necessary for men and women to become old at 35 or 40 due to our present method of living or is science coming to the rescue and turn the clock back for those of us who are growing old before our time?

This is the question that is uppermost in many people's minds since the announcements concerning monkey and other animal gland operations startled the world a few months ago, when men of seventy and eighty were reported to have experienced a return of health and strength that they had not enjoyed in many years, as a result of the animal strength thus imparted.

But animal gland operations are not the only thing. Science has discovered that it is possible to put gland extracts in tablet form made the same as pepsin which is taken from an animal. As a matter of fact there is already on the market a preparation containing gland extracts from sheep and cattle combined with iron which is being used with apparently great success by thousands who were weak, thin, pale, and anaemic, and who are now enjoying buoyant health, strength and endurance. This new preparation is called Glandex Compound and is sold by nearly all druggists under the manufacturer's guarantee that if it doesn't bring decided results within a very few days the purchase price will be refunded. So perhaps the fountain of youth and health has at last been discovered. Who knows? Certainly it is worth trying. The Glandex Company, Inc., 254 West 29th St., New York City.
